Korean Veteran Would Back Raids on Cuba

To get on Cuba, on these raids I believe they are a good thing, regardless how bad they may sound or look. I give these people credit. They are fighting for their rights, to get communism out of Cuba, to make their stay uncomfortable for the Russians as much as possible.

Now, these brave men are to be complimented instead of the State Department trying to hinder their actions.

But through the CIA give them food, medicine, arms or what have you to carry out their missions to do the job and to show the Russians and the Communist camp what they are up against.

I am for not stopping these raids, but to increase them, and I wish there were a lot more of L-Commandos and Alpha 66.

The Russian Government and others in the Communist countries helped train agents and commando-type troops to shoot up our troop trains, to blow up bridges, tracks and anything to hinder our American troops and others behind the lines in Korea.

I know. I was there in Korea, on the lines, and I don't care what anybody says; if we stop those freedom-fighters it would be a very timid stand on our part as a free nation.

What do we care about these neutral nations? All they care for is our free loading "aid" that they've been getting for years.
